Study Title: Evaluation of the Effect of Maket and Video-Based Oral Health Education on Oral Hygiene Habits and Dental Caries in 3-5 Year Old Children

Dear Parent,

Kindergartens are important settings for group education aimed at developing healthy behaviors and children's independence. School-based toothbrushing programs are particularly valuable for improving oral health and detecting existing oral conditions.

This study will be carried out during school hours while your child is at kindergarten. Therefore, there is no need for you to come to the clinic.

First, you will be asked to complete a questionnaire. Afterwards, a pediatric dentist will examine your child's teeth. Your child will then be shown how to brush their teeth correctly and effectively using a dental model and will practice on the model. After a certain period, the same questionnaire and oral examination will be repeated to evaluate the effectiveness of the education provided.

All instruments used during the examinations will be sterilized and used only for one child. There will be no charge for participating in this study. The records obtained will be used only for scientific purposes, and personal information will be kept completely confidential. Participation in this study is entirely voluntary. You may withdraw your child from the study at any time without giving any reason.

If you have any questions or concerns during the study, you can contact the responsible researcher, Dr. Elif Tamtekin.
